MINUTE OF FACTS

Stated in the Dispatches to Lord St Vincent.

The French transports ran into the Nile, and Buonaparte landed with only a few days provisions on hand, with about thirty eight thousand men, two thousand having been cut to pieces on attempt to land at Alexandria, where they expected a passive reception. The last dispatches state, that the only supplies Buonaparte could get were a little rice and water, brought to him on camels by the Arabs, but that the Turks were taking measures, not only to cut off this succour, but to march against him.

The crew of the Timeleon, when the ship took fire, attempted to save themselves on shore, but were all cut to pieces. The L'Orient's people were in part destroyed in the same manner, and blown up, only a few escaped, prahaps into the woods to starve.

The French fleet, at the time of the action, had only five days provision on board.

[We further learn by Mr. Yates who came passenger in the America, and who was favored by Admiral Jervis himself with the official particulars above related, that none of the transports were destroyed, having probably run up the bay of Rosetta into shallow water, and that nothing certain had transpired to unravel the future projects of Buonaparte, whether he meant to settle down in Egypt, or whether he cast his wishful eyes on the distant shore of Mangalore. His situation at best appeared to be hopeless—his armed ships captured or destroyed, his transports blocked up, and his retreat cut off—his provisions nearly exhausted, and a supply precarious at least, if not unattainable; and above all, pressed on every side by hordes of Saracens, too barbarous to be worked upon even by French delusion.

The forebodings of the invader must forcibly assure him that the despoiler of Italy and the conqueror of Egypt will never be united in the same man, and that he has, fortunately for the world, perhaps, left the channel of Britain to perish on the banks of the Nile.]

We very confidently assured our readers, some weeks since, that Buonaparte's fleet had met with a defeat, and that the French government, by their "gag laws," had endeavoured to stop the circulation of the news; but that admiral Jervis, as soon as the winds of the Mediterranean would admit, would receive and transmit the official account to England, when the world would soon be informed of the grateful event.

The ship Mount Vernon, of Baltimore, left Batavia previous to the 23d July, for Tanquebar.

☞ A stated meeting of the American Philosophical Society, will be held at their Hall, on Friday evening the 23d instant.

PHILADELPHIA,

THURSD EVENING, NOVEMBER 22.

ADDRESS.

To the PRESIDENT of the United States.

Edenton, 4th September, 1798.

SIR,

WE, the Officers and Soldiers of the Regiment of Militia, in the County of Chowan, in the State of North Carolina, being this day assembled in general muster, and naturally reflecting on the critical situation of our country, which may, ere long, require our services in the Field, avail, with alacrity, of favorable an opportunity to express our sentiments of the present important crisis, and which we have the pleasure to assure you are unanimous.

Well knowing the advantages and blessings of Peace, and how essential it is to the welfare of our country to preserve it with all nations, we approve of the measures which have been taken for that purpose with respect to France, and which we anxiously hoped would be effectual; but we have seen every effort of our Government treated with contempt: Not only one Envoy rejected with ignominy and disdain, but more solemn embassy of three not suffered even to negociate, and a miserable attempt made, after vainly trying to reduce them to the meanest compliances, to divide them from each other, and carry on a delusive shew of Negociation, for the purpose (as we solemnly believe) of effecting divisions in our Country, all deceiving it (if it could be weak enough to be deceived) into an inactivity of preparation suited to their machinations against us, but fatal perhaps to our country forever.

We have no reason to believe that our Government has been in any fault, (and are perfectly convinced that it has not been so intentionally); but as it magnanimously, and with a noble sense of duty, offered a fair discussion of this subject, and reparation if any injury had been committed, we consider the treatment our Public Ministers have received the highest indignity that could be offered to our country, the most open defiance the common sense of mankind ever yet exhibited, and a decided proof that the Directory were conscious that their conduct would not stand an investigation, but that they possessed views which they dared not avow.

We have read, Sir, with peculiar satisfaction, your liberal and wise instructions, and are satisfied you could not, without dishonor, have carried your concessions further.

In this situation, therefore, insulted as our government has been, (a government of our choice, and therefore peculiarly intitled to our protection), extensive as have been the French depredations on our commerce, and as no hope remained of Justice by peaceable means, we highly approve of the measures of [illegible] devised in support of that Sovereignty and Independence, of which we should deem ourselves unworthy, if we hesitated for a moment to resolve to risque every thing in their defence against all attempts, whether foreign or domestic; and we rejoice that the exertions of our country in this great conjuncture, are to be conducted under the auspices of a Statesman who has so eminently entitled himself, by a long display of illustrious talents, and the most conspicuous virtues in public and in private life, to that confidence which the present arduous situation of public affairs indispensably requires.

By order, and in behalf of the Regiment,

RICHARD BENBURY,
Brigadier General.

ANSWER.

To the Officers and Soldiers of the Regiment of Militia in the county of Chowan in the state of North-Carolina.

GENTLEMEN,

YOUR unanimous address at Edenton of the fourth of September, has been transmitted to me by Richard Benbury, Esq. your brigadier general.

After a solemn embassy of three envoys had been denied an opportunity to negociate, the miserable attempt to divide them from each other, and carry on a delusive shew of negotiation, for the purpose of effecting divisions in our country, was too mean and contemptible to impose upon the credulity of any true hearted American. I rejoice in the opportunity of congratulating you, on the ill success of that wretched artifice, both with the people of America and with the envoys, who are now all happily returned to their country.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 20.

Within these few days the Proclamation has been made public, which Buonaparte issued in the Arabic Language, on his landing in Egypt. The following is a faithful translation of it:

"In the name of God, gracious and merciful.—There is no God but God; he has no Son nor associate in his kingdom

"The present moment, which is destined for the punishment of the Beys, has been long anxiously expected. The Beys coming from the Mountains of Georgia and Bajars, have desolated this beautiful country, long insulted and treated with contempt the French nation, and oppressed her merchants in various ways. Buonaparte, the General of the French Republic, according to the principles of liberty, is now arrived, and the Almighty, the Lord of both Worlds, has sealed the destruction of the Beys.

"Inhabitants of Egypt, when the Beys tell you the French are come to destroy your Religion, believe them not: it is an absolute falsehood. Answer those Deceivers, that they are only come to rescue the rights of the poor from the hands of their tyrants, and that the French adore the Supreme Being, and honor the Prophet and his holy Koran.

"All men are equal in the eyes of God: understanding, ingenuity and science, alone make a difference between them; as the Beys, therefore, do not possess any of these qualities, they cannot be worthy to govern the country.

"Yet are they the only possessors of extensive tracts of land, beautiful female slaves, excellent horses, magnificent palaces! Have they then received an exclusive privilege from the Almighty? If so, let them produce it. But the Supreme Being, who is just and merciful towards all mankind, wills that in future none of the Inhabitants of Egypt shall be prevented from attaining to the first employments, and the highest honors. The administration, which shall be conducted by persons of intelligence, talents, and foresight, will be productive of happiness and security. The tyranny and avarice of the Beys have laid waste Egypt, which was formerly so populous and well cultivated.

"The French are true Mussulmen. Not long since they marched to Rome, and overthrew the throne of the Pope, who excited the Christians against the Professors of Islamism (the Mahometan religion). Afterwards they directed their course to Malta, and drove out the unbelievers, who imagined they were appointed by God to make war on the Mussulmen. The French have at all times been the true and sincere friends of the Ottoman emperors, and the enemies of their enemies. May the empire of the Sultan therefore be eternal; but may the Beys of Egypt, our opposers, whose insatiable avarice has continually excited disobedience and insubordination, be trodden in the dust, and annihilated!

"Our friendship shall be extended to those of the Inhabitants of Egypt, who shall join us, as also to those who shall remain in their dwellings, and observe a strict neutrality; and when they have seen our conduct with their own eyes, hasten to submit to us; but the dreadful punishment of death awaits those who shall take up arms for the Beys, and against us. For them there shall be no deliverance, nor shall any trace of them remain.

"Art. 1. All places which shall be three leagues distant from the route of the French army, shall send one of their principal inhabitants to the general, to declare that they submit and will hoist the French flag, which is blue white and red.

"Art. 2. Every village which shall oppose the French army, shall be burned to the ground.

"Art. 3. Every village which shall submit to the French, shall hoist the French flag, and that of the Sublime Porte, their Ally, whose duration be eternal.

"Art. 4. The Sheeks and principal persons of each town and village, shall seal up the houses and effects of the Beys, and take care that not the smallest article shall be lost.

"Art. 5. The Sheiks, Cadis, and Imans, shall continue to exercise their respective functions; and put up their prayers, and perform the exercises of religious worship in the Mosques and houses of Prayer. All the inhabitants of Egypt shall offer up thanks to the Supreme Being, and put up public prayers for the destruction of the Beys.

"May the Supreme God make the glory of the Sultan of the Ottomans eternal, pour forth his wrath on the Mamelukes, and render glorious the destiny of the Egyptian nation!"

DUBLIN, September 22.

Instructions have been transmitted to gen. Hutchinson, commanding a force of 1500 men at Castlebar, to act in the most vigorous manner against those rebels, who, notwithstanding the defeat of their allies and the destruction of their friends, still continue to distract, by their depredations and outrages, the northwest parts of the county of Mayo.

Guards have been this day placed on the several bridges leading to the county of Wicklow and its vicinity to prevent any of the rebels who may be chased out of those parts by the military now scouring the country, from effecting their escape through this city.

This day gen. Lake is expected to set out for the county of Wicklow, in order by a system of decisive and persevering measures to accomplish the reduction of Holt and the disgraceful banditti who have hitherto kept alive the rebellion in the county of Wicklow.

Wednesday a poor inoffensive man named James Miley, was seized by a party of the Wicklow rebels, as he was saving his little crop of hay on the lands of Mergastown, and placed against a wall by the merciless villains, who fired at him and lodged three balls in his head.

The county of Wicklow is still subject to the depredations of Holt's and Hacket's gangs. Some days since a party of those desperadoes, well mounted and armed, consisting of about 50, not content with having before carried off the stock, and many things of value from Ballybegg, (the property of the rev. Richard Symes) returned there so early as five o'clock on Sunday evening, having heard that some yeoman corps were stationed there to protect it and the adjacent country, and in a few hours reduced to ashes, with the greatest part of its furniture, that ancient and respectable mansion,—the family residence upwards of a century.

Wednesday night a banditti, composed of about 40 of Holt's miscreants, penetrated into the neighbourhood of Celbridge, and committed the most wanton depredations on the property of several industrious and peaceful inhabitants. Amongst those who suffered, Mr. Cruise of Ardrey, and Mr. Peppard of Bank's-town, have been plundered, not only of cash and provisions, but also of furniture and cattle.

September 23.

At twelve o'clock this morning Teeling was brought into Court, pursuant to an adjournment from Thursday. He read his defence, which occupied three folio pages.—It commenced, injudiciously as many Lawyers have asserted, with implied suspicions of the jurisdiction of the Court, emphatically contrasting the disadvantages he might be presumed to labour under, with the superior chances he might have if tried by the Civil Law. The main point of his defence was, however concise, merely stating, that having been bred in France, though a native of Ireland, he entered early into the Republican army, where he attained to some rank; that at the time the last French expedition to this Country was projected, he was at Rochelle, where he received orders from General Humbert to join the destined embarkation with all possible dispatch; that he though it his duty to comply, as a refusal would not only be certain death to him, but stamp his name with infamy. He adverted, as an extenuating circumstance, to the humanity of his conduct since his arrival in Ireland, as appeared by the testimony of his Prosecutor; and concluded with the usual ceremony of reliance on the justice and mercy of the Court, and some personal compliments to the Lord Lieutenant.

He was adjudged Death, though not formally, until the sentence is sanctioned by the Lord Lieutenant.

LONDON, September 25.

The French according to Buonaparte, in his Arabic Proclamation, are true Mussulmen. All their hostility to christianity and its professors, we may therefore conclude to have originated solely in a desire to establish the religion of mahomet at Paris.

The Begnieres, mentioned in the action stated to have taken place between Admiral Nelson and the French fleet, is a corruption by the French of the Italian word Bicchierre, being the name given by the Franks to several hills on the coast to the east of Alexandria, from the resemblance they bear to glass tumblers reversed and so called ever since the Crusades. This coast has no harbor, but an open roadsted, as described by the French, and indeed the only place where so large a number of transports could ride in any safety, as the winds are invariable during the summer solstice, that is from the 15th of June to September. from N. to U. E. and N. W. being the Etesian wind mentioned by Herodotus, as blowing in that period 100 days.

The Dutch Gazettes, and also letters from Amsterdam of the 12th inst. received on Monday, mention that an engagement had taken place between the English and French fleets in the Mediterranean; and that Admiral Nelson had arrived in Naples Bay with eight sail of French ships. He is said to have dispatched the Leander, of 50 guns, with the news to lord St. Vincent.

So decided and deep is the court of Naples in its hatred to the French, that the French papers say, a great number of natives of France have been forced to quit the Neapolitan territories. "It is only," says a Parisian journalist, "through friendship for Spain, and a remnant of regard for the emperor, that the blow against Naples has not yet been struck. But our troops are advancing towards her frontiers, and will be able to invade her territories upon the first signal."

An embargo has, by order of the French directory, been lately laid on all the principal ports of the republic; in consequence of which general sir Charles Grey dispatched orders to every regiment stationed in the district under his command, which have been since publicly read by officers at the head of every troop and company. The orders are very long, but their chief purport is, for the troops to hold themselves in readiness to march at the shortest notice and as free as possible of all incumbrances, beyond a necessary change of linen, &c.

The drought at present is so great in France, that they have desisted in Paris from watering the streets, and the rivers are in many places said to be dry.

The original plan of the French for invading Ireland was, to send three squadrons to sea at one and the same time—one from Rochfort, (which got clear of our cruizers, and, after being seventeen days at sea, landed General Humbert and his banditti at Killala); a second was to sail from Dunkirk; and a third from Brest.

This afternoon, Messrs. Aubrey, Delarue, and Ramel, late Members of the Legislative Bodies in France, and transported from that country with General Pichegru and Barthelemy, were brought to town from on board the Nimble Cutter. These gentlemen were taken late in the evening to the Duke of Portland's office, and from thence to the Alien office, in Down-street, Westminster. General Pichegru at present has apartments at an Hotel in the Adelphi.

Baraguay d'Hilliers and Capt. Bergeret were arrested immediately on their return to France, and are now confined in the Temple.

From a Paris Paper.

A curious experiment was made not long since on the Seine, at Paris. Twelve soldiers entered the water in order of battle, and with the aid of a machine, which embraces the body, they traversed the Seine with great celerity, and after having drawn up in a platoon on the opposite bank, they re-entered the river, and in the middle of it set up a fire of musquetry well sustained, and charged with bayonets, though they had under them at least 21 feet of water. Besides the weight of the men, this machine will carry a burthen of five myriagrammes, without ſinking! The inventor is Citizen Mangin, Adjutant-General with the Miniſter of the Interior.

NAPLES, Auguſt 12.

A Letter from Florence, dated Auguſt 21, ſays, According to letters from Naples, the French Charge d'Affairs has given in a note to the Neapolitan Miniſtry, in which he proteſts againſt the admiſſion of the Engliſh fleet into the harbours of Sicily, and declares it will be conſidered as a breach of the treaty of peace.—French troops are continually on their march towards the Neapolitan frontiers."

The King of the Two Sicilies has this day iſſued the following Proclamation:

"The great alterations which within theſe few years have taken place, both in the political ſituation and in the organization and tactics of the military force, have induced us to turn our attention to the re-organization of the army and other military force of the country, in order to provide for the defence of our States and the protection of the lives and properties of our ſubjects. In this view we have from time to time adopted meaſures to bring the royal troops to that degree of perfection of which they are capable. The abſolute neceſſity of augmenting the power of the State, and (what is much more) rendering it effective, becom s more urgent, ſince the Italian States our neighbours, have aſſumed a hoſtile appearance. The States of Barbary, too, have in a particular manner ſince the late occurrences at Malta, doubled their audacity, which muſt excite well-founded apprehenſions for the ſafety of our kingdom. In order therefore to oppoſe a powerful barrier to the attempts which either one or the other of thoſe powers may make againſt our States, it appears neceſſary to augment the regular force in Sicily, which appears particularly threatened. In order therefore, to oppoſe an invincible barrier againſt all attempts, we have deemed it neceſſary to declare by the preſent Edict, that all males in our dominions are born ſoldiers, and are bound to take up arms in defence of our holy religion, the crown and their own life, in caſe theſe ſacred objects ſhould be attacked by barbarians, or any other hoſtile nation. In conſequence of this principle all our ſubjects from the age of 17 to 45, are to be conſidered as if they had been enrolled in the different corps of the army, and if circumſtances require, they muſt join the corps for the performance of actual military ſervice. We, ourſelves, as well as his Royal Highneſs our ſon, are comprehended in this enrolment, and we ſhall be the firſt to ſacrifice our lives in defence of our Religion, the Monarchy, and our Country."

This edict was publiſhed on the receipt of a courier from Naples. Every thing depends, therefore, upon the iſſue of the diſputes between the court of Vienna and the French government. If Auſtria continues at peace we alſo may expect tranquillity.

VIENNA, September 5.

It is now aſſerted that prince Repnin will not have the command of the Ruſſian army which is on its march, but that it will be given to prince Ferdinand of Wurtemberg. The adjutant-general of his imperial majeſty, baron Vincent, has been ſent to meet the Ruſſian troops, and accompany them thro' the Auſtrian Hereditary States. At the ſame time a conſiderable Ruſſian corps, under the command of field-marſhal Suwarrow, will march into Turkey to reſtore tranquillity there; while another army of Ruſſians, in conjunction with the Turks, will be employed againſt Buonaparte.

FRANKFORT, September 11.

Notwithſtanding all the alarms of war of the laſt week, we are now very quiet. The French remain as they were, and are principally employed in raiſing contributions and requiſitions.

The artillery is gone back to Weilburg. The troops which had been aſſembled at ſeveral points have likewiſe marched back: the head quarters are ſtill at Friedberg. The number of French troops collected on the Upper and Lower Rhine, is eſtimated at 100,000 men.

LONDON, September 27.

The Paris papers having been the firſt to give an account of the battle between the Britiſh and French fleets, and that intelligence being confirmed by another account received from our miniſter at Conſtantinople, does away all doubt of an action having taken place. Mr. Smith, having the beſt means of information, would not deceive our court, or be himſelf deceived: he muſt have had the moſt poſitive belief of the fact before he tranſmitted it to government; and adminiſtration muſt have had an entire reliance upon its truth, before they publiſhed the intelligence in the ſhape of an official bulletin.

The following, which is an extract of a private letter from Conſtantinople, dated Aug. 22, ſeems to give a more minute account of Buonaparte's landing in Egypt, than any we have before received:

"Though the Divan had been previouſly informed of the French intending to invade Egypt, yet by many of its members this report was deemed a mere fiction, invented to diſturb the good underſtanding which has ſo long ſubſiſted between the Ottoman Porte and France. Their aſtoniſhment was therefore extreme, when they were officially acquainted with the French having actually effected a deſcent near Alexandria. The particulars of this event are as follow:

"The Toulon fleet, having for ſome time cruiſed in the Archipelago, appeared before Alexandria, and the French demanded to be received as friends. The muſſelman, who commanded in that city, made very ſtrong remonſtrances againſt their projected landing, endeavouring to convince them that any attempt of that kind would be conſidered as an attack on the right of Sovereignty of the Grand Seignior, on the privileges of the country, and on the tranquillity and ſafety of the inhabitants. But all his remonſtrances proved fruitleſs: the French landed in different places about 22 000 men, notwithſtanding the reſiſtance made by the Egyptian troops, and the inhabitants of the country.

"Two days after, the French intending to occupy a poſt to the right of Alexandria towards Roſetta, they were ſurpriſed by a corps of about 6000 Egyptian horſe, and ſome thouſand foot, commanded by a Bey who enjoyed the reputation of a brave and gallant ſoldier. The engagement laſted a few hours, and the Bey was forced to retreat with conſiderable loſs, though the French ſuffered likewiſe conſiderably; and their loſs was more ſeverely felt, as they were unable to repair it. This action convinced Buonaparte of the ſentiments of reſpect entertained for him by the Arabs, and by the Egyptian troops. He called a council of War, the reſult of which was, to advance beyond Roſetta, and to entrench himſelf about 10 or 12 leagues from that town, on the banks of the Canal which leads to Cairo. In this poſition, he iſſued a proclamation, and endeavoured to ſet on foot a negociation with the Beys, who, however, peremptorily refuſed to treat with him, but inſiſted on his re-embarking his troops, and quitting the dominions of the Grand Seignor.

"In this ſituation were the affairs of Egypt on the departure of the laſt accounts received from that country.

"In our city we hear of nothing but war, though no declaration to that effect has as yet been iſſued by our government.—The moſt vigorous warlike preparations are, however, made both by ſea and land. Under theſe circumſtances, the French Charge d'affaires, as well as the other French citizens reſiding here, keep at home, leaſt they ſhould be inſulted by the mob."

The Hamburgh mail has brought an article of information, which though not of the very firſt importance, is nevertheleſs a very curious production a proclamation iſſued by Buonaparte, which is a maſter piece of revolutionary hypocriſy. This general laſt year profeſſed the utmoſt reſpect for the Pope, though at the ſame time he robbed him of his dominions; he now declares "that he honours the Prophet and his holy Koran," at the very moment that he invades the country inhabited by his moſt zealous followers, and moſt fervent diſciples. But ſo far from his hypocritical proclamation having made the leaſt impreſſion on the Turks, favourable to the republican adventurers, the moſt vigorous preparations are made throughout the Turkiſh dominions to check their further progreſs. It is therefore undeniable that he finds himſelf in an hoſtile country, where he is likely to meet with obſtacles far more numerous and inſurmountable than he expected.

It will be recollected that gen. Buonaparte previous to his quitting Italy, gave a Conſtitution to the Ciſalpine republic. The French Directory, it would ſeem, is now reſolved to take advantage of his abſence to deſtroy his work by the agency of M. Trouve the Directorial Envoy at Milan. The conſtitutional party of the Legiſlative Body has ſent gen. Lahoz to Paris to oppoſe the innovations intended by Trouve, who in a letter to the Directory, has denounced the manœuvres of the ambaſſador, and complained of a handful of ruffians holding regular meetings in the houſe of citizen Trouve.—Inſtead of receiving any ſort of ſatisfaction, Lahoz was ordered to quit Paris within twenty-four hours.

Lucien Buonaparte, at the head of the anti-directorial party in the Council of Five Hundred, has eloquently defended the work of his brother. On a late motion of order, he founded the toeſin againſt the diſpoſitions of Government, which under the ſpecious name of reform, evidently ſtrove to bring on ruin. He ſaid, the French conſtitution itſelf was threatened with ſimilar innovations, by the Directory, and on the point of being overthrown in the ſame manner. Almoſt all the members demanded that his ſpeech ſhould be printed; but the devotees of the Directory ſucceeded in cauſing the council to be reſolved into a ſecret committee, in which Buonaparte's motion was diſpoſed of by the order of the day.

From all the recent proceedings of the Ottoman Porte, it may be conſidered as having virtually, if not formally declared war againſt France. Among other acts of hoſtility, it is ſtated to have iſſued a Firman, forbidding the ſeveral Commandants in the Archipelago to admit any French ſhips of war or tranſports into the ports of that quarter.

The greater part of the Auſtrian military force in Bohemia has been ordered to advance, as their place is to be ſupplied by a part of the Ruſſian troops on their march to the frontiers of Bohemia—It is added, that all the places through which the Ruſſian troops have paſſed, and where they have ſtopped bear ample teſtimony to their good behaviour.

It is to the credit of our ſervices, that they do not proceed to the ſame extent as the intelligence from France reſpecting Admiral Nelſon's victory. The French ſtate, that their fleet has been engaged and deſtroyed; the Britiſh miniſter at Conſtantinople, brings the hiſtory down to the burning of one large ſhip;—are we to ſuppoſe, that the French have added the remainder of the narrative, for the purpoſe of repreſenting themſelves as more weakened, more diſgraced, more beaten, than they really were? Certainly, no.

By accounts from the Continent every thing is agreed upon for the Supreme Government of the Catholic Church at the death of the preſent Pope. As ſoon as that event takes place, the Italian, German, and Hungarian Archbiſhops will be declared Cardinals, and will proceed to the election of a new Pope. It is thought that the choice will fall upon the Archduke Maximilian, Elector of Cologne.

The funds at Paris have riſen of late under an idea that the period of a general peace is not far diſtant.

A letter from Copenhagen, of the 11th inſtant ſtates, that another Ruſſian ſquadron compoſed of ſeven men of war, is arrived in the Baltic, and has caſt anchor in the bay of Kioge.

The Poſnania Gazette ſays, that prince Repnin had gone from Dreſden to Vienna, to negociate a paſſage for 60.000 Ruſſians, through Gallicia, and Auſtria, to unite with the Auſtrians on the frontiers of Switzerland. Several Ruſſian regiments had already arrived in Gallicia.

The report in the laſt French papers of a Negociation for Peace being on the tapis between Portugal and France, is corroborated by the intelligence received yeſterday from Hamburgh.— (Times.)

The late Grand Maſter of Malta reſides near Trieſte, at an eſtate belonging to the Ruſſian Reſident. A great number of the Knights of Malta have taken up their abode in the neighbourhood of Trieſt.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Citizens of Philadelphia,

A Meeting of the United Iriſhmen has been announced yeſterday through the medium of Mrs Bache's paper—it is therefore aſked what can be the intention of a meeting ſo deſignated? Is it for the purpoſe of forming plans for the introduction of a ſyſtem into this country, by which ſimilar aſſociations have ruined that of their birth—a ſyſtem too which would have brought ſome of the leading characters in this ſociety to the Gibbet, had they not fled from thence and found an aſylum here. But it is unneceſſary to aſk what their intentions are—their object is evident.—Acting, in as much as they can, under the intrigues of France, for which no doubt ſome of them are well paid, and fine promiſes made to others, they unite in efforts to favor the wicked deſigns of that nation of plunderers, of reducing us to the wretched ſtate of the unfortunate Genevans—the views of their brethren in Ireland were the ſame.

Americans beware! Look upon theſe United Iriſhmen, whatever appearances they may put on, even with Cockades in their hats, as ſo many ſerpents within your boſom. I know many of them, and I know their ſentiments to be inimical to our happy government—I know alſo that, if ever they have an opportunity, they will be ready to join your enemies in plundering you of your honeſt and well earned property, and to ſubjugate you to the greateſt tyranny that has ever curſed the world. I mean France; and this I ſay from the knowledge I have of ſeveral of them—ſuch has been the conduct of ſome, and the wiſh of the whole of them, towards their own country—what then can we expect from them here? Be convinced of theſe truths, Philadelphians, and keep a ſtrict watch over United Iriſhmen—be perſuaded that they are your enemies—they talk loudly of their attachment to this country, but believe them not; it is only a maſk to cover deſigns formed againſt your rights and liberties, which they will throw off the moment they can attempt with any degree of ſafety to carry their plans into execution—as the United Iriſhmen in Ireland have done.

A Loyal Iriſhman.

An Iriſhman.

A certain Jacobi happening in company with ſeveral gentlemen, laſt evening, was exulting at the good luck of Buonaparte in getting ſafe to Alexandria, and pointing out with great perſpicuity the facility with which he would get to the Red Sea, when he was interrupted by a ſervant handing in your Gazette of Monday which one of the gentlemen on caſting his eye over, exclaimed, that the French had actually got to the Red Sea. I told you ſo; I told you ſo, ſaid the Jacobin do let us have it. Read on, do read on, but alas, how great was his confuſion and diſappointment on learning that it was the Red Sea that Admiral Nelſon had ſouſed the poor devils in.

Trenton, November 19.

It is ſaid, that while General Pinckney, with his lady and family, were in this city on Monday laſt, on their way to Philadelphia, Doctor Logan happened at the ſame Inn with them; and that the General, wiſhing to expedite his journey, had propoſed, in the hearing of Logan, to take the ſtage, and leave his family to travel on at their leiſure; when this fellow, Logan, the late illegitimate, ſpurious, or baſtard ENVOY to the French Republic had the unparalleled effrontry to offer the General a ſeat in HIS carriage.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years paſt been in the ſouthern States, has had the effrontery to draw ſeveral Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Eſq. Secretary of State, and myſelf, and by that means has defrauded a number of perſons of their money, deceiving them by an exhibition of letters and papers with the names affixed of divers public characters and reputable merchants highly recommendatory of ſaid Shaeffer; to one of theſe papers I find my name ſubſcribed, but I do not know the man; theſe are villainous forgeries! To prevent further impoſition, I have to requeſt the printers of Newſpapers in the United States to publiſh this for the benefit of their fellow-citizens.

At the requeſt of the Inhabitants of the Town of BOSTON, in commemoration of the anniverſary of American Independence.
By JOSIAH QUINCY.

"The inroads upon our public liberty, call for reparation—The wrongs we have ſuſtained, call for—Juſtice. That Reparation and that Juſtice, may yet be obtained, by Union, Spirit, and Firmness. But to divide and conquer was the maxim of the Devil in the garden of Eden, and to diſunite and enſlave hath been the principle of all his votaries from that period to the preſent."
